Love, VRE Kindergarten

Last month Kindergarten was in the process of designing blankets for Nexus Recovery Center. Today the blankets are with women and children. But how? I went behind the scenes and interviewed Finley Raffenbeul of K5 to learn the process they used to make blankets that are warming patients today.

They started with a chart comparing fabric and decided fleece was "coziest." Finley recounted that they cut and tied strips of the fabric together to create their blankets. VRE Kindergarten-ers made 26 blankets. Two representatives from Nexus graciously took the donated blankets. Today all Kindergarten-ers are proud to have helped.

Jump Rope For Heart

Are you ready to jump? Jump Rope for Heart is underway and the students are having a great time! We are learning individual jump rope skills, partner skills, and long rope skills. Jump Rope For Heart is one of our favorite units and it's a great way to keep our hearts healthy and strong. Don't forget you can be a Heart Hero by raising money for the American Heart Association. I know we're going to have a SUPER year again!

Editor's Response

Dear Editors,

I think that our school should have school sports so that kids just don't sit at home and watch TV or play video games all day. There should be a flag football team and a volleyball team. There should also be a soccer team and a tennis team. There should also be a gymnastics team also. There should also be a basketball team, and for each team there should be cheerleaders. That is why there should be school sports.

Dear Gabe Benedict,

*Wow! That is a lot of action! We love the idea! If you want sports, try the Y.M.C.A teams or other Coppell sports leagues. And besides, you're going to Middle School in five months!
Good Luck!*

From,
